I was born in this Valley and I have lived here all my days.

I have lived here in times of plenty and now in times of drought and famine. This valley was once a wonder, but like the seasons, all things change. When I was a child, his name was but a whisper carried upon the cold night wind...

As the years have come and gone his influence has grown, as has his power. He has recruited powerful allies and enthralled terrifying beasts. Soon, if you do not end his reign, the darkness will cover the land and the Valley that I love will be no more.

It is an injustice that so much rests on your shoulders. It seems that destiny is seldom fair. However, while the fate of the Valley is in your hands I can provide some small aid. I have created these maps over a lifetime of adventures, penned in both ink and blood.

They are the testament to all my travels. I have set down every landmark and feature from the primeval forests to the crystal streams and everything in between. My feet have trod upon every road and every path in this land and it is my hope that, through these maps, it will be as if yours have as well.

They are my most precious possessions, a lifetime of work. Now, I give them to you. May they guide you and speed you on your journey, because you haven't a moment to waste...

Accalon

It is my hope that when you do stand against him you'll be ready. In that pursuit you'll need any help you can get... and I may be able to offer something more.

Long ago I was given a relic, an Astrolabe of power. Unfortunately it was stolen recently. It is still in the Valley, for that much I know. Should you locate it, use it's power to your advantage. Though I would caution you, know that the magic within is nearly spent. When the charges are exhausted, the relic will lose it's power permanently.

If you do locate it, please consider returning it to me with whatever charges yet remain. I would see that you receive a fair reward for your trouble.

TREASURE
ASTROLABE
You've found an astrolabe bear maker's mark of Accalon the ex
and cartographer.
The item is constructed like no astrolab you've ever seen, and it is apparent that powerful magic is woven within.
While you carry it, you may choose to ignore any Wander result. In addition, this item may be used twice per game in order to grant the group an extra Movement and Event phase. In doing so, the group may move again and complete one Event at the new location. This power may be used any time outside of combat.
Upon the second use, the item's magical nature fades and it becomes a mundane item.

Bring Accalon's Astrolabe to the location shown here with charges remaining and he'll give each hero four gear upgrades of their choice.

Bring it after it has been depleted and he'll give each hero a Power Up card instead.
